Please refrain from limiting satellite radio's (XM) ability to provide nationwide and local information. This is a service that subscribers pay for, and we should have complete freedom of what we listen to. The high quality of signal and programming is definitely a benefit to the American consumer. Although local services should be available through satellite radio, most of us will continue to listen to standard airway broadcasts for local news, traffic and weather and support local advertisers. Please allow the market to decide which radio supplier can be most successful.
